THE FAIR HOUSING ACT’S DEFINITION OF A DISABILITY

The Fair Housing Act defines disability as a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities. Under this definition, an impairment is a disability if the impairment substantially limits the ability of the person to perform a major life activity as compared to the average person in the general population. The definition also takes into account any mitigating measures, such as medication or other treatment or therapies, the person is employing that may relieve the substantial limitations caused by the impairment. If the mitigating measure(s) eliminates the substantial limitation(s) caused by the impairment, the person does not have a disability.

1. Does the resident have a disability under this definition? _____ Yes  _____ No
